

Smooth_Moretraining | Additional inferential analyses | 435 real eye-controlled choices

metric | slope $p=0.019$ * | OR/SD=1.25

Temporal associations - real choices

both curve is a logistic regression fitted to unbinned real choices; its slope tests whether signed salience predicts T1 selection. B: last-third minus first-third changes in the probability of choosing a target; positive values mean the predictor increases the response. Stars are Fisher exact tests with FDR correction. D: Pearson correlation with attention. Statistical significance does not by itself establish a meaningful effect size.