

rsSmooth_training | Additional inferential analyses | 316 real eye-controlled choices

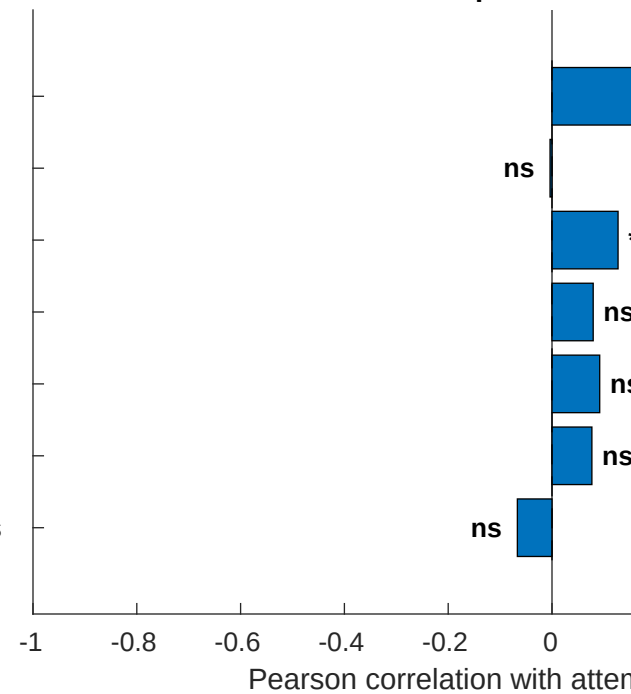

metric | slope $p=0.156$ ns | OR/SD=1.17

Temporal associations - real choices

Temporal trends

Both curve is a logistic regression fitted to unbinned real choices; its slope tests whether signed salience predicts T1 selection. B: last-third minus first-third changes in choice probabilities; positive values mean the predictor increases the response. Stars are Fisher exact tests with FDR correction. D: Pearson correlation with attention. Statistical significance does not by itself establish a meaningful effect size.